I can fill you in on a few , given my Dad (Mr. NOWLAND): was the head of the History Department . Mr. NOWLAND died in 1979 from complications of surgery, while in Greenwich Hospital. My mother died within a week of him from a stroke. Mr. ARMITAGE dropped dead of a stroke or heart attack (can't remember which) leaving a young teenage son (not sure of the date, but I think it was in the 60's). It was an untimely end. Mr. SCHWAGER (a good friend of my dad) died at his beautiful lake home in Tahoe (not sure of the date). Many on the list were my Dad's contemporaries and I suspect most are deceased. Sam RUTIGLIANO went on to coach the Cleveland Browns for a year (It was interesting to see him on the sidelines.) I suspect he's still alive. I saw Gerry MACK years ago directing the Hartford Chorale at a televised Xmas concert (the Hartford school system). He looked just the same as I remembered him. Don't know if he's still alive. That's about all I know .

Dr. Gerry MACK was director of Choral Music at Hartt College (University of Hartford) for many years, retired a number of years ago and now , among other things, directs the Worcester Chorus in MA. My brother, Tom, sings in the chorus so we attend the concerts regularly. Wife Nancy McGEE also sings in the chorus. The MACKs live on Nantucket and commute from there to his various musical activities. Age has not diminished his skills, nor has it changed his appearance or demeanor.

Dr. Gerald MACK, Director of the Worcester Chorus since 1978, is in constant demand as a guest conductor, lecturer and clinician. Formerly Director of Choral Activities at the Hartt School of Music, University of Hartford, he has gained a national reputation for his expertise in the field of choral music. He has conducted extensively on national radio and television networks, and his choruses have performed with leading orchestras including the Boston Symphony, American Symphony, and Rochester Philharmonic, among many others.

Dr. MACK and his choruses have appeared in the renowned concert halls of Western Europe and the United States. Twice he has been selected to represent the U.S. with his chorus at the International Society of Music Educators' conventions held in Vienna and Montreaux. He is the editor of the "Gerald MACK Choral Series" with publishers Carl Fischer and Lawson-Gould. In 1995 he founded the Great Waters Music Festival on Lake Winnepesaukee in Wolfeboro, N.H. Past chairman of the Choral Standards and Repertoire Committee of the American Choral Directors' Association, he was guest conductor and director at their 1991 national convention in Phoenix. Dr. MACK has conducted the Worcester Chorus on successful international tours in 1998, 1994, 1990, 1986 and 1983.

Regarding Peter McDEVITT- He came to UConn to work in the PE Dept during the time I was there. My alumni directory says he is "retired Physical Education Teacher, UConn" and lives in Willimantic.

I'm not sure why the names of the coaches stuck in my mind. The names of some of the teachers don't even sound familiar.

Ken WENDRICH died in a car accident Nov 1st 1994 (my 50th birthday) He was at GHS from 1959 to about '65 then on to Yale and then The Neighborhood Music School in New Haven. Later he was dean of music at Bowling Green and finally head of a neighborhood music school in Nashville, affiliated with Vanderbilt. Over the years I have met many music educators who respected him.

Viola McGARY died in the 60's and a music scholarship was established in her name. Rudyard (McGARY) and I went to Indiana together, music majors. He also got his masters there (and was All-American soccer, drafted to kick field goals for Green Bay, but a motorbike accident ended that. He did, however, hear Vince Lombardi do his "This is a football" speech. Which Rudy can retell as no one can!)

Coach LUCE lives in Old Lyme, CT. His wife passed away 2 weeks ago. Miss ARMSTRONG, the glamorous French teacher, was, for many years, the head of the Senior Center on Greenwich Avenue (the old town hall). I played a lunchtime program there and she was just great. (I just remember Ted HINES, the gym teacher, lusting after her. She was pretty large by the late 1980's) I'll bet Marsha WASHINGTON knows how she is - Marsha is with the Mews (old folks home) just across the way on Arch Street. Allen KIRSCHNER died, too. I sold his Old Greenwich house for him in the mid 70's. He was teaching at The Peddie School in NJ where "all the boys wear ties and call him sir". Really great guy...

ALLEN R. KIRSCHNER

Allen KIRSCHNER was the faculty adviser for Greenwich High School's Class of 1962 and taught many of us English. Our last year at Greenwich High was his last one, too. In the summer of 1962, he moved to Princeton, New Jersey, as chairman of the Princeton High School English Department. From 1971 to 1980 he was chairman of the English Department at the Hun School, a private school in Princeton, and he was Head of its Upper School from 1980 until his retirement in 1991. Allen died three years later. He had five sons, two stepsons, and two grandchildren.

Allen's Princeton students and faculty colleagues remember the same insane attachment to Moby Dick and the same extremely sane, calm quality of openness and caring that I remember. One teacher says that if she had a rough day, Allen would always ask her the same question: "Does your husband still love you?" And she would say yes. And Allen would reply, "So what else really matters?"

The Hun Senior English Prize is given annually in Allen's name, and a memorial fund was established to create and maintain a media center, the Allen R. KIRSCHNER Reading Room, at the Hun School Library and to furnish it comfortably and purchase books in areas that interested him. His widow Patsy, who was also on the Hun staff and is about our age, says that this not a confining restriction because there wasn't anything that didn't interest Allen. She also says he truly loved our class and talked about us a lot. Contributions of money and memories are both welcome. It means a lot to Patsy and the family to hear from people who enjoyed and benefited from knowing Allen.
